ENJOYABLE MUSICAL

Miss Griswold's Concert Was a Success.

ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

The Hawaiian Opera House Holds a Fashionable Crowd Last Night.

The concert by Miss Griswold at the Hawaiian Opera House was well attended. The audience was sympathetic and seemed to enjoy greatly the excellent music.

Miss Griswold was prettily gowned in white crepe over pink silk and appeared to much advantage. The program was as follows:

- (a) "La Camella" Guglielmo
- (b) "The Merry Brown Thrush" Dudley Buck
- (c) "Pour la Chanter" Gounod
- Delia E. Griswold.
- Sonata, op. 27, No. 2 Beethoven
- (a) Adagio Sostenuto.
- (b) Allegretto.
- (c) Presto agitato.
- Frank A. Ballaseyus.
- Rondo Capriccioso Saint-Saens
- Paul Egly.
- "La Parlate d'Amor" (Faust) Gounod
- Delia E. Griswold.
- Concertstueck, op. 79 Weber
- Prof. Ballaseyus.
- (a) "Romanza Andalusia" Sarasate
- (b) "L'Abelle" Schubert
- Paul Egly.
- (a) "The Night Now Is Clear" Tosti
- (b) "La Habanera" (Carmen) Bizet
- Delia E. Griswold.

Of the first three numbers, "The Merry Brown Thrush," was perhaps the favorite though the beautiful composition of Gounod, "Pour la Chanter," was the most artistic and suited Miss Griswold's voice charmingly.

She was heartily applauded. Maybe she was better in "La Parlate d'Amor," which brought out the depth of tone which in her stronger notes is particularly soft and musical.

She was encored with fervor and leis heaped at her feet.

All her numbers were well rendered. Professor Ballaseyus gave three movements of Beethoven's delightful "Moonlight Sonata," as also "Concertstueck, opus 79 by Weber." He did not get quite all that he should have out of the "Moonlight Sonata," but won merited applause.

Paul Egly gave much pleasure by his rendition of Saint-Saens' "Rondo Capriccioso." Perhaps his happiest number was "A Romanza Andalusia," by Sarasate. He also played "L'Abelle," by Schubert, and for an encore the always pleasing "Coming thro' the Rye," with variations. The concert altogether was a decided success.

WHARF RATS RAMPANT.

Three in Jail Awaiting Judgment—Iron Works Besieged.

A large number of young wharf rats have recently gotten into the habit of loafing and otherwise making themselves a general nuisance around the new buildings and grounds of the Honolulu Iron Works at Kakaako. These little vagrants, in order to keep out of school and away from their parents, stay around the premises day and night.

David Kaapa and several other police officers made a raid upon the truants the other night, but, since the police were armed with lanterns, the boys managed to get away.

Yesterday morning, however, three of the boys, who had been arrested the night before, were brought up in Judge Wilcox's police court charged with truancy. Not one of them had attended this term of school and one of them had appeared in the police court once or twice before. John Makuaole, Kekua and Joseph Kopia are the names of the three. Kekua was overcome with weeping while in the presence of the judge. Makuaole's mother was in court and stated that attending school did not agree with her boy's health but that he was all right as long as he was allowed to be out in the open air. The third boy had never been to school.

The three boys were sent below for another day while further investigations are made by the police and their cases will come up again this morning.
